dp DIGITAL PUBLISHERS Launches UK Division Headed by Former Publishing Director of Lume Books

dp DIGITAL PUBLISHERS is continuing to expand its strong European network. The company founded a French subsidiary based in Strasbourg back in 2023. This is now being followed by the establishment of the British subsidiary based in London.

London/Stuttgart, 16 July 2024. Marc Hiller, founder of German based dp DIGITAL PUBLISHERS, has announced the launch of a new UK division that will publish English language adult commercial fiction in all digital formats for the English-speaking markets globally.

The new division will adopt the same publishing strategy that has helped dp to become one of Germany's most successful digital first publishers. The launch of the UK division follows the successful launch of the French division in 2023 and continues dp's vision of building a successful network of European offices that combine local publishing expertise with proprietary technological resources developed to streamline production, finance, sales and marketing for ebooks and audiobooks.

The focus will be on publishing a wide range of commercial adult fiction that includes reinvigorating popular backlist titles and discovering new stories from brilliant authors. The UK division will also follow the other divisions by having the same concern for offering their authors the best royalty rates in the industry.

On his reasons for launching a new UK division, Marc Hiller explained "With this move we can open the way for our authors and licence partners to tap into the potential of more than 80% of ebook readers in Europe. Our success in developing dp into one of the leading independent publishers of ebooks and audiobooks in just eight years is already a great track record, but to now enter the UK market is fantastic."

James Faktor, former Publishing Director for Lume Books, joins as Publishing Director for the UK. He will be assisted by both the Stuttgart and London office team and will begin publishing later this year.

Faktor said: "I believe that dp has already brought an unparalleled level of innovation and success to digital publishing in both Germany and France to deliver great results for authors, and I'm delighted to be spearheading their expansion into the UK. This is an exciting new development in the digital publishing space and I feel honoured to be involved from such an early stage in shaping the direction of growth."

Marzia Ghiselli will continue in her advisory role as head of International Business Development, advising on future growth opportunities and the strategic direction of the company.
